

International experts talk patient communication

INTERNATIONAL experts from the American Society of Clinical Oncology will visit Brisbane in November to conduct an advanced patient communication workshop.

Clinical Oncological
Society of Australia

The workshop (14-15 November) will feature facilitators and actors to help guide participants through subjects including diagnosis and prognosis, relapse, palliation and end-of-life issues.

After the workshop the Clinical Oncological Society of Australia will hold its Annual Scientific Meeting (16-18 November). To be held at the Brisbane Convention Centre, "Crossing Cancer Boundaries" will be Australia's largest gathering of health professionals working in cancer treatment and research.

Program and registration information for both the workshop and COSA ASM are available at www.cosa.org.au
